PAYING DUTY IN KIND.

One Case Where a Thieving Turk Was Bitten—How Justice Is Meted Out.

The rapacity of Turkish officials of all sorts is notorious, but that of the customs officers exceeds all other kinds. An interesting instance of paying duty in kind is to be recorded. An official of the British embassy bought in Paris a dress for his wife, for which he paid £10. The customs official valued it at £60 and demanded duty on that amount. The Englishman protested, and, knowing the law, said they might keep the dress, paying him the value they had fixed upon it, less the eight per cent. This was done, and a month later at the public auction of confiscated goods he bought back the dress for £6, thus getting the dress for nothing and making a profit of £39 4s on the bargain.

Justice is meted out rapidly in Turkey. On one occasion a Kurd picked up a tobacco box in the street, which was promptly claimed by an Armenian. Just as they were coming to blows a policeman interfered. Both Armenian and Kurd claimed the box, when the former suggested that the Kurd should say what was in it. "Tobacco and cigarette paper," promptly answered the Kurd. "Nothing of the sort," cried the Armenian. "It contains only a five piastre piece." The box was gravely opened by the policeman, who then said: "The Armenian is right and the Kurd is a liar." Here he smote the Kurd's head. "Furthermore, Allah be praised!—for my trouble in deciding this complicated case I keep the five piastres."

EARNINGS VERY LARGE.

Sleeping Cars Pay for Themselves in Considerably Less Than a Year.

The well-patronized sleeping car pays for itself in considerably less than a year. Take the run from New York to Chicago, 1,000 miles. Every road in the United States pays three cents a mile for the privilege of hauling a sleeper and contracts to return said car in as good shape as it is received and to pay for all damages. The journey on the limited expresses to Chicago is made in 24 hours, therefore the car earns $30 a day for travel.

If it is full, which is generally the case, receipts from berths, sections and staterooms amount to $185, making a total revenue of $215 a day. Out of this must come the wages of the porter and conductor—the latter, however, usually having charge of several cars—the towels, sheets, soap, ice, etc., the whole amounting to but a small sum.

Then there are the wear and tear and general depreciation, the daily cleaning, the annual refitting and repainting. Set these charges down at ten per cent, and give the car three trips a week of 1,000 miles each, and we have its earnings at over $60,000 annually. Some can earn a great deal more.

THIS BIRD CAME BACK.

It Returned Alone from California to Its Home in Rogers Park, Ill.

A story illustrating the remarkable instinct sometimes displayed by birds is told by a Rogers Park man, says the Chicago Chronicle. He had a pet oriole to which a friend visiting him from California took a great fancy. Although the bird had been in the family since the day it was picked up as a fledgling by the head of the household, the Californian was made its owner. The gift was so appreciated that the oriole became the Californian's companion on the return journey to the Pacific coast. Of course the bird was caged during the trip, but it was allowed a degree of domestic freedom on its arrival near the Golden Gate. Soon the Rogers Park man heard that the pet had disappeared. Fancy his surprise when he awoke one morning to find the bird scratching at one of the summer screens of his bedroom window. The exiled oriole had returned, but it will always be a mystery to the owner how the long journey was made—whether the homeward flight of the little pet was across the great divide of the Rocky mountains or by way of the no less trying route of the Arizona deserts.

HUMBERT'S PECULIARITIES.

Didn't Care for His Army and Disliked Conventionalities—What He Enjoyed.

"Did the Italians like Humbert pretty well?" was asked of a well-known Americanized Italian the other day after the receipt of the news of the assassination of the king of Italy. "I see by the newspaper dispatches that he was extremely beloved," responded the Italian. "Well, what are the facts in the case; was he really popular?" "Not at all. He took little interest in anything or anybody. He cared so little for his big army that to my personal knowledge he was never inside the barracks of his own King's guards." "What did he care for?" He must have been interested in something." "All he cared for was to go shooting or get out to some country-house, where he could yawn without covering his mouth with his hand."

THE LATEST AILMENT.

It Is Electro-Fanitis, or a Sneezing Cold, Caused by the Electric Fan.

A brand-new hot weather ailment has whirled into existence, says the Philadelphia North American. It is electro-fanitis. Perhaps you have got it, as no class is immune. It is a sneezing, coughing cold in the head caused by the germ-laden breezes of the electric fan. It is almost epidemic in Philadelphia.

phias. If you are a victim hurry to a physician or drug store and ask for a powerful anti-phlegmistic remedy. That is, something to relieve inflammation of the mucous membrane of the head, which is what electro-fanitis is.

This name, by the way, has been agreed upon by eminent medicophiles. The affix "itis," meaning "inflammation," was selected because it is the term which of late years has been applied to all new inflammatory ailments. It may be pronounced either e-tis, like e in each, or i-tis, like i in idol.

Unless promptly cured electro-fanitis may develop into the two other diseases of the same family—tonsillitis and bronchitis.

The victims of the new ailment include bankers, merchants, clerks, stenographers, barbers, and in fact every class of people who perform indoor work, where electric fans are in operation. Patrons of restaurants, upon whose heads the artificial breeze generators are played while they eat, also form a large proportion of the sufferers.

Physicians report that the majority of complaints come from barbers, who stand for hours at a time under the whirling fans. Many of their customers are also affected. Among the city officers dozens of cases exist.

The most distressing and annoying characteristic of electro-fanitis is that it is never contracted except in hot weather, and there is nothing more distressing than a summer cold. Being caused by artificial atmospheric conditions, it is much more difficult to cure than an ordinary cold.

Dr. P. R. Cleaver, of this city, describes the causes and peculiarities of the complaint as follows:

"The principal reason why the air currents produced by electric fans so readily cause inflammation of the mucous membrane of the head is that the drafts are sudden and easily impress the system of the patient, whose vitality has already been lowered by the heat."

"Then these currents of air are not the fresh waves of ozone which are in circulation outdoors. The artificial breezes are nothing but impure air forced into motion. A steady blowing wind at the seashore would not affect the membrane, whereas the whirling electric breezes cause inflammation. The patient who is suffering from the latter cause ought to secure prompt treatment. Tea and coal tar preparations are about the best remedy."

MINISTER HAS A QUEER CAT.

A New York Pet That Can Tell as "at Home" Day and Knows His Mail.

Not the least important dweller in the home of the pastor of a popular and fashionable uptown New York church is a marmalade cat, beautifully marked and of rare breed, which shall be called Jim. That is not the real name of this household pet, who would probably scorn so common a one as Jim, but there are reasons why he should not be too closely identified. Jim is no common cat. He knows his friends among the callers at the home of the minister, and those to whom he does not take a fancy are pretty apt to find it out. He knows the "at home" day as well as any member of the family, and on that day takes a prominent place on the divan, ready to receive the attentions of those of the callers whom he numbers among his friends and purr his satisfaction when they fondle him, says a New York paper.

This minister had occasion to move his residence a short time ago, and of course Jim moved with the family. He did not seem to like the new place. He went from room to room, looked carefully at the wall papers, seemed to sniff at them as though they did not meet his approval, and then he disappeared. An hour later he appeared again, somewhat battered and bruised, took another look at the wall decorations and seemed to decide that, unsatisfactory though they were, it was better to endure them than the perils to be encountered abroad.

Next door to the old home of the minister lived a woman who was very fond of Jim and who regretted the circumstances that brought about a change of residence. She wrote a letter the other day and addressed it to "Jim." This letter was placed by a maid on a hatrack in the hall, along with the other letters delivered at the same time. Jim seemed to know this letter was intended for him, because when a member of the family came downstairs that morning he was found trying to tear open the envelope. Strangely enough, he had never taken such a liberty with a letter before that time and has not disturbed any letter since.

Although Jim has lived all his life in the home of a minister, he does not always show that humility which would naturally be expected. He likes to make visits, but no other cat is allowed on his premises. Next door to Jim's home is a house he loves to visit. He will roam all through it and play with the cat which comes there, but the other day when the neighbor's cat came, as if to return a call, Jim met him at the door, hit him on the side of the head with a paw and marched proudly up the stairs, as though he had done something worthy the pet of a minister's household.

Mail in Central Africa.

The postmaster general of the British central African protectorate gives one or two interesting items of news in his latest report. The mails are still conveyed for the most part upon the heads and backs of native postmen. The men are recruited chiefly from the Yao and Atonga tribes and wear a uniform. Fully 300 bags of mail are made up each month at the different post offices in the protectorate for conveyance by these men, the total distance traveled being close upon 10,000 miles per month, the cost of transit being less than a half penny per mile per bag.

SNAKES ON PICNIC GROUND.

Pleasure Resort Was Laid Out at Great Expense Over a Den of Reptiles.

"A few years ago," said Mr. Kepp, of Punxsutawney, Pa., to a Chicago Inter Ocean reporter, "a friend of mine, Maj. Powell, who was superintendent of a little railroad, built at considerable expense a fine picnic ground out among the rocks and trees of Bradford county. He thought it would help the road to have a fine rustic and romantic resort, where people could go to hold picnics, and anticipated that there would be one or two excursions every week to this cool sylvan retreat. And it was a mighty pretty place. When it was all fixed up and about 300 people, the majority of them children, went there to have their first picnic, Maj. Powell was there in all his glory to witness the opening of what was to be the most popular resort in Bradford county. Presently somebody saw a big rattlesnake, which was duly dispatched. Mr. Powell looked at it, and not wishing to injure the reputation of his sylvan paradise, said: 'Yes, that is a pretty fair sized milk snake,' and ordered it buried."

"But that snake had scarcely been buried when a man came in with six more big rattlers that had just been killed. And that was only the beginning. In a few moments it was discovered that the place was literally alive with rattlesnakes. Most everywhere you turned there was a big rattler, and you can guess that the women and children weren't long in getting out of that. The fact was that the picnic grounds were constructed right over a den of rattlesnakes. The major had spent nearly $300 in fixing up the grounds, and had named the place 'Paradise Glen,' but the people shunned it as a pestilence after that and changed the name to 'Rattlesnake Gulch.'"

DOES NOT COME WITH AGE.

Wisdom Is Not Always One of the Accompaniments of Years.

A medical man has discovered that neither in youth nor old age is a man likely to make the biggest fool of himself, remarks the New York Press. Extreme youth usually is considered not to have arrived at the dignity of years of discretion, yet a homely proverb would have us believe that "there is no fool like an old fool." This medical observer has broached the theory that there is an "aberration period of middle life," between the ages of 37 and 62. "If," he says, "a careful examination be made of the preventable disasters of the last 20 years and of the ages of those who were held responsible by the verdict of mankind for such lamentable issues there will be found a strange coincidence in the range of their ages."

Here is an interesting and practically inexhaustible field for investigation. Politicians who are "agin' the government" may trace the blunders of an administration to the sinister influence of some boss who was passing through the fatal period at the time, and "regrettable incidents" of all kinds, in war or peace, may be traced to their true origin. In time, no doubt, we shall appreciate the necessity of requiring all public men, on entering the fatal period, to take a five years' holiday and to resume work only when they have passed the age of aberration.

TRIED BY HIS PEERS.

Stinging Rebuke to a Jury That Had Reached an Outrageous Verdict.

No member of the Massachusetts bar stood higher than the late Harry W. Paine. He was absolutely fearless, and occasionally trampled upon the traditions of the courts with the utmost recklessness. On one occasion he was defending a charity case in which a boy of 15 was charged with arson. He made a strong case to prove the defendant an idiot. After a charge from the judge, which was practically an order for acquittal, the jury brought in a verdict of guilty. The judge asked Paine if he would move for a new trial. "I thank you for your suggestion," was the answer, "but I am oppressed with the gravest doubts whether I have the right to move for a new trial. Your honor, I have already asked for and received for my idiot client the most precious heritage of our English and American common law—a trial by a jury of his peers."

Paine had an old quarrel with the supreme court, and never lost an opportunity of showing his contempt for that body. Once, riding from Boston to Cambridge with a load of law books, he was accosted by a young Harvard man with the remark: "You have quite a load, Mr. Paine. Law books, I suppose?" "Oh, no," was the answer, "only supreme court reports."

About Bald People.

Most bald people are found to lead indoor lives, and almost all of them belong to the intellectual class. Usually the loss of hair begins before the thirtieth year. In woman it usually constitutes a general thinning; in man it affects the top of the head. Diseases that affect the general nutrition of the body are likely to thin the hair.

France Taking to Cheap Liquor. A comparatively sober country not so very long ago, France has become the prey of the cheapest and most deleterious forms of alcohol.
